Levin Kooss

UX/UI Designer | Bridging Design, Frontend & AI - crafting clear, human-centered digital experiences.

New Zealand

Summary

Hey, I'm Levin - a UX/UI Designer and Frontend Learner from Germany, currently based in New Zealand.

I design and build digital experiences that feel effortless to use and meaningful to interact with. My goal is simple: turn complex ideas into products people actually enjoy.

I'm self-taught, which means my learning comes from creating - shaping real user flows, testing ideas, refining every detail until it feels natural. Along the way I picked up HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, and now I'm learning React to bring design and development closer together.

I actively use AI tools in my design process - from ideation and wireframing to creative exploration and UI refinement. It helps me work faster, think broader, and push projects beyond the usual limits.

I care deeply about how things work and how they feel. Whether it's a website, a mobile app, or a full product experience, I focus on clarity, flow, and the small moments that make users stay.

I'm open to roles across Europe and beyond - with teams who believe that great design isn't just seen, it's felt.
